Senator Johnson May Withdraw; Calls His Managers to Capital

Unexpected Move Comes Following Defeat in Michigan and Illinois —Withdrawal Question to Be Left to His Managers

WASHINGTON, April 9—Senator Hiram W. Johnson has summoned his eastern campaign managers to a conference Friday for the purpose of determining whether he shall remain actively in the race for the Republican nomination, International News Service learned this afternoon.

Johnson called the conference following his defeats by President Coolidge in Michigan and Illinois.

It was understood Senator Johnson will submit to his campaign managers the question of discontinuing his campaign. Among the managers summoned were George H. Bender, of Ohio, George Howard Payne, of New York, and Paul Verdon of New Jersey.

The senator's recent primary defeats at the hands of President Coolidge thruout the middle west were said to have discouraged him.

At the conference, Johnson also will decide whether to continue the race in New Jersey and Ohio, where his name already had been entered. If agreeable to his managers, Johnson probably will make no campaign in either state but merely allow his name to be voted upon because it already has been ordered on the ballots.

BOYS TO START ON POULTRY PROJECTS

Boys in the class in vocational agriculture in Coshocton high school, under the direction of C. H. Ross, are planning to start their poultry projects within the next few weeks.

Herman Sandel, of Franklin-tp, son of J. Q. Sandel, who is starting in the second year of his project work under the direction of Director Ross, will receive at an early date 500 purebred White Leghorn baby chicks, recently ordered from a nearby hatchery, which he will rear as his season's project, according to rules submitted by Mr. Ross. He has built a modern, ten-by-twelve, Ohio brooder house, in which the chicks will be raised.

George Henderson, of Cambridge-road, son of Charles Henderson, has also ordered 500 purebred White Leghorn baby chicks. It is his hope to maintain a flock of 200 laying pullets next winter, reared from these 500 chicks if possible, for the winter quartering of which he will build an up-to-date Ohio multiple poultry house. This is Henderson's first year in the poultry project and he expects to use the pullets reared this year for next year's work.

Dinsmore Finlay, of Bethlehem-tp son of E. L. Finlay, is a second year worker, and has 120 pullets from last year's project. He will within the next few days receive 500 baby chicks, 300 purebred White Leghorns and 200 Rhode Island Reds, for this year's project. From his 120 yearling hens and the pullets raised in this year's work he will cull 180 hens for next winter layers. This will fill his Ohio multiple house to capacity.

Seven chickens in one building were burned. Little damage was done.

Both trucks answered the call.

DAWES' REPORT IS PLEASING TO THE FRENCH LEADERS

PARIS, April 9—While foreign office experts had not time this afternoon to examine the Dawes report in detail, it was intimated that it will be the foreign office policy to use the report merely as a basis of future negotiations.

It is the desire of the experts that the report be accepted or rejected in whole. They made in plain in their report that they believe the recommendations and suggestions should be the last word on reparations.

The first newspaper on the street with a summary of the official report was L'Information.

"The experts implicitly recognize that Franco-Belgian policy induced Germany to capitulate," commented L'Information.

"French opinion favorably acclaims the project, recognizing that it brings something new, substituting solid values based upon railroad receipts and taxes for A. B. C. bonds, which were simply paper without guarantees. If Germany rejects the plan she will bring down upon herself the criticism of the entire world, gravely compromising her credit."

In some quarters there was a disposition to criticise the report because it did not fix the total amount of indemnity Germany should pay and indicated that the French and Belgian machinery for supervision of industry in the Ruhr should be withdrawn.

INDICTMENT OF WHEELER IS CALLED A FRAME-UP; WILL NOT STOP PROBE

BY WM. K. HUTCHINSON

WASHINGTON, April 9—One of the bitterest political wars within memory loomed today as a result of the sensational Montana indictment of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Democratic prosecutor of the senate's investigation of former Attorney General Daugherty's administration in the department of justice. Altho Senator Wheeler probably will eliminate himself in the near future, it was learned definitely that the investigation will be continued. Instead of stopping the inquiry, indications are that the effect of the indictment will increase the bitterness that has at times marred the proceedings to date.

Democratic spokesmen also planned to make the Montana action the subject of senatorial debate. With party bitterness already at fever heat and a presidential election approaching observers expected an outburst of partisan warfare.

It was indicated the Democratic leadership in the senate would direct Wheeler's defense. This course would be adopted, because the charges against him reflect on the Democratic party, as well as the senator. It was learned that Wheeler spent most of last night in consultation with Democratic leaders. Even tho Wheeler removes himself from the investigation, the Democratic-insurgent coalition will continue in control. According to Senator Brookhart, Republican of Iowa, the insurgent chairman, the inquiry will be

TP. TRUSTEES ARE ARRESTED

Failure to Drag Roads is Charge; Say They Haven't the Money

Because they failed to allow a bill of $1.50 for road dragging, John Lower, John Mizer and Frank Pew, Keene-tp trustees, have been arrested on warrants sworn out in the court of Anderson Miller, justice of the peace of Keene-tp, by Guy Miller, his son.

According to the story of one trustee Wednesday, Miller was not authorized to drag the roads. Nevertheless, he dragged the roads near the Miller farm on the Keene-Coshocton road, and at the last meeting of the trustees presented his bill of $1.50. The trustees decided that as the township is short of funds they would not pay the bill at once. Miller immediately sued for this amount, charging the trustees with failure to drag Keene-tp roads, as required by law, one of the trustees declared.

Other farmers of the Keene vicinity have been dragging the roads near their farms without charge, according to one of three charged.

Two of the trustees appeared at the sheriff's office Wednesday afternoon. They were indignant over Miller's actions. They admitted that the law requires them to drag the roads but declared that they have no funds available to do so.

Hearing will probably be held in the matter sometime tomorrow.

STILL PROBE POLITICS OF JAKE HAMON

BY KENNETH CLARK

J. F. Baughn, of Harlinger, Texas, declared Hamon told him after the convention —

"I signed the check that nominated Warren G. Harding for president."

Baughn was not pressed for the amount of the alleged check but declared Hamon farther had told him that he "would spend a million dollars, if necessary to put Oklahoma in the Republican column behind Harding.

Wm. H. Miller, Columbus, former assistant attorney general of Ohio, to whom J. B. French previously said Hamon gave $25,000 to pay the hotel bill of the Harding delegation at Chicago, followed Baughn on the stand.

Miller said he first met Hamon in April 1920 in Indianapolis, being introduced by Charles Watson, brother of Senator Watson, Republican of Indiana.

Poll Tax Plan Discarded —Combined Footage and Business Tax is Favorably Considered —Several Give Talks

A plan that seems to have met favor with both the city council and Coshocton's business men, and one which, from all appearances, council will likely adopt, was proposed last night when members of council met with many of the leading business men of Coshocton at the public library to discuss the local tax situation.

The plan is to combine the real estate assessment plan, using the front foot as the unit, to cover the cost of street lighting and cleaning, with the occupational tax plan as used in Cincinnati.

$28,000 IS NEEDED

Coshocton needs $28,000 to balance the budget this year. By the land assessment plan, it was explained, about $12,000 can be raised to cover the street lighting cost, and $6,000 for the cost of cleaning. A bafance of $10,000 will then be left to be raised by the tax on business.

DISCARD MARION PLAN

The Marion, Ohio, plan, that of collecting two dollars from each employer in the city for each person in his employ, and two dollars from each employe, was discarded at the meeting last night. A poll tax is unconstitutional; and it has been learned that suit has already been filed to test the legality of the Marion tax system. Members of council here desire that the legality of any plan which they adopt will be unquestioned.

To attempt to raise the entire amount of $28,000 by tax on business it was contended, would be unfair. Councilmen believe that the combined plan, tho perhaps not be entirely free of inequalities, will come nearest to an equal distribution of the load.

WILL BACK COUNCIL

The meeting was called Tuesday evening by President of Council E. S. Gaumer to "feel the pulse" of the business men. President Gaumer hoped to secure each one's opinion regarding the plans, and at his request last night nearly all of the men present responded with brief talks, telling whether or not they oppose or favor either plan, and why. The consensus of opinion was that whatever plan the council see fit to adopt, the business men and the

MAN, BELIEVED MURDERED BY KLAN, STILL ALIVE; HIDING, KLANSMAN SAYS

Copyright 1924 by International News Service.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 8—Thomas F. Richards is still alive and a captive of Ku Klux Klansmen.

This is the keynote to an amazing story, which Dr. A. C. Busey, the "man of mystery," who has disappeared from the federal prison here, boasted would solve the infamous hooded mob murders of Mer Rouge, La., which shocked the nation during the winter of 22-23.

In his startling tale rivalling the fancies of fiction, Busey flatly repudiated the charges of the state of ouisiana that Richards and Watt Daniel, his bosom friend, were "fed into a torture machine" by a blacked robed mob of Klansmen in August 1922.

Busey admitted Daniel had been murdered but he insisted that Richards left the scene of the crime an unharmed man, but a captive of those whose hands were red with Daniels' blood. The two bruised, mangled bodies, which authorities later found in Lake La Fourche and which were identified by dry-eyed friends of Richards and Daniel, Busey classed as "fakes" secured from the riff raff of medical colleges.

For the last twelve months Busey claimed, Richards has been held a captive by friends of the man who killed Daniel. The captive has been hurried from state to state, surreptitiously, and usually in the dead of night—a fugitive from the Klan as well as from those who represent the law.

From his cell, Busey wrote a friend:

"I hold the secret. Richards is alive and I can lead you to him anytime. His mother lives at West Monroe, La., and for her sake, things must move. Some one is pleading for her and the prayer of a mother will be answered shortly. If I have to serve all my time, I will do it like a man but Richards will be returned to his mother at no distant date."

Here is Busey's story:

Richards was inducted to betray his bosom friend to the masked band of murders on that warm August afternoon when the Klan went raiding along the highways of Morehouse parish. He lured Daniel into the Klan's hands and when hours later, violence ended in murder, they carried Richards away to captivity lest his lips send half a dozen of their number to dangle at the end of a hangman's noose.

Up into Arkansas, the murderers carried their captive and then, on a wide sweeping arc across the state and southward into Texas. Weeks of captivity lengthened into months and finally into a year and more. And today Richards still lives, a harried broken man near death—but still under the vigilant eyes of those who fear his lips may spell for them a murderous doom.

This is the story of the "man of mystery" for whom the department justice is conducting a nationwide search.

"Richards must remain in captivity," Busey told a friend. "If the Klan produced him, it would spell the death warrant for half a dozen men. This is proved by the state's failure to convict even to this day, when the murder was committed a year ago."

In the secret archives of the highest imperial Klan officers, Busey was marked down as a man who saw the murderers at work on that fateful August night. It was then reported that he stood upon the banks of Lake La Fourche the night that Daniel died. It was said [illegible] Busey watched the [illegible] group [illegible] down away and bury it beneath the [illegible].

his personal fortune on a similar search. It was Skipwith who circulated a report that Richards was alive, during the famous Bastrop "open hearings." One of these reports was carried as a news item by International News Service on January 15, 1923.

This report was immediately denounced by Mrs. Anna Richards, mother of the missing man as unfounded. She was satisfied her son had been "foully murdered." Richards' widow or wife shared this view for she has since remarried.

EDITORS: In another story tomorrow, International News Service will reveal the "inside story" of the murder plot as revealed by Busey. It deals also with events at the "open hearing" investigation in Bastrop.

JAMES

Lanning was taken aboard the train and was removed to the Twin City hospital in Dennison.

Wilson and his son-in-law buy and sell produce. They were delivering lard in the touring car at the time of the accident. The contents of the truck were strewn along the track.

FINDS SON INJURED

The wreck carried with it an unusual coincidence. James Lanning, father of the injured boy, who had been in New Philadelphia, and was returning to his home in Newcomerstown, stopped at the crossing in his machine shortly after the accident to see who it was that was killed. He discovered his son had been in the accident.

BRING BODY HERE

Mr. Wilson was born and reared in the vicinity of Plainfield. He was a farmer by occupation. He left Plainfield three years ago to make his home in Canton.

Funeral services will be held Thursday in Plainfield M. P. church for Mr. Wilson. The services will be in charge of the Rev. Mr. Chessire, pastor of the Plainfield M. P. church. Burial will be in the Plainfield cemetery.

The widow, two daughters and two sons, who live at Canton and one brother, William Wilson, of the Plainfield vicinity, survive.

Steadily increasing their production, the government owned oil fields in Argentina yielded nearly 2,400,000 barrels last year.

These Three Letters Prove It

Lowell, Mass.—"I am sending you a few lines to let you know what good your medicine has done for me. I want you to let every one know that it has helped me in nervous troubles. I have four children and you know there is a lot to do where children are. They would come in from school and they would start telling me about their little troubles but I could not stand it. I had to send them away. I could not even walk on the street alone I was so nervous. I found one of your books and read it and then I saw in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I got it and had taken one bottle when I saw a change in myself. I was surprised. The children can talk all they want to now and it does not bother me. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JOSEPH LEMERE, 34 South Street, Lowell, Mass.

Felt Like A New Woman

Springfield, Missouri.—"For four or five months I was run-down, nervous, my back ached and I did not feel like doing a thing. Sometimes my legs ached and felt like they would break and I had a hurting in my sides. I had been reading in the newspapers the letters of other women who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the advertising of it appealed to me so I bought some and saw results in almost no time. I had hardly been able to do my own work and after taking the Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman. I recommend it to my friends who have troubles like I did, and hope they will find the same results."—Mrs. M. CARPENTER, 607 W. Chase Street, Springfield, Missouri.

40 Years Old, Feels Like 20

Hagerstown, Md.—"I was very bad off with backache, a bearing-down feeling in my body and a pain in my left side. I could not be on my feet at times and once I was so bad I walked bent over to one side for three weeks. My sister read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me a bottle. I got so much relief that I took more until I was well. I am 40 years old and feel like 20. I am sure this medicine will help all women."—Mrs. MARY E. SANDY, 436 W. Franklin Street, Hagerstown, Md.

Over 100,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 98 per cent of these replies are "Yes."

That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take this medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

All druggists are having increased sales of this medicine.

World Court and League of Nations May Become Issues in Campaign of 1924

WASHINGTON, April 9—Foreign affairs, the world court and the league of nations — heretofore crowded off the stage by Teapot Dome and other domestic disturbances in the realm of party politics—may get back into the drama of the 1924 campaign.

The resolution of Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania, Republican, calling upon the president to summon a world conference similar to the Hague conference of 1907 and previous years has precipitated a debate in the senate of no casual importance. The Republican leadership did not connive with Mr Pepper to bring up the subject of a world court with its collateral question of league of nations parenthood. Only a few days ago, Senator Robinson, the Democrat leader accused Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Republican leader with having pigeonholed the international court proposal submitted to the senate by the late President Harding and Secretary Hughes and endorsed by President Coolidge as the only practical plan at present before the world. It had been hoped by Republican leaders that the world court plan might slumber in committee at least until after the campaign.

But Mr. Pepper has revived the whole problem of foreign policy. There is no doubt that while his move was criticised as indiscreet and without the authority of the Republican leadership, it does represent an effort on the part of the Pennsylvania senator to answer the criticism that the Republican party having pledged itself to an association of nations in 1920 did nothing about it. Even tho it might keep inside the Republican family to forget this the Democrats had no intention of ignoring the issue and are preparing to accuse their Republican brethren of failure to fulfill pledges.

To the friends of international cooperation any sort of conference which takes America out of her isolation and brings her into conference officially with the other powers of the world is looked upon as hopeful. The Hague conference contained a code of international behavior, limited in effectiveness but far more advanced than the views of the isolationists who now oppose agreements of all kinds with the other governments of the world.

The Democrats probably will support Mr. Pepper's move largely because they know it will mean embarrassment within the ranks of the Republican party and anything which can be done to split the Republican party still more is Democratic strategy just as it was Republican tactics in the league of nations fight.

The Coolidge administration has had other plans. Awaiting the report of the Dawes-Young advisory commission, the hope has been expressed officially that a rehabilitation of the European economic situation would be followed by an era of political stability and that international conferences would await a settlement first of the reparations problem by direct agreement between the interested powers. Another conference to limit armament especially that of submarines and air craft was proposed as a part of the naval appropriation bill now the house recently but the president while in sympathy with the purpose of the measure, did not feel anything could be accomplished on a reduction of armament until the deeper questions involved in the economic and political relationship of European countries to each other were adjusted.

The summoning of an international conference would, of course, if led to a successful meeting like the Washington arms part of 1921 help the prestige of the Coolidge administration but the chances are that all proposals including that of Senator Pepper will be held in abeyance until after the national convention in June. There is no Republican desire here to hand Hiram Johnson an issue on a silver platter.

Great Waterway Projects

By W. F. SULLIVAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

KANSAS CITY, April 9.—The greatest fight in many years will be made by States in the Mississippi Valley this year to have Congress adopt the big waterways improvement projects provided in the Newton bill.

The measure provides for the approximate expenditure of $71,000,000 in the next five years for improvement of navigation on the Ohio, Mississippi and Missouri rivers. The Mississippi River would be improved from its mouth to Minneapolis, the Ohio from its mouth to Pittsburgh and the Missouri up to the Quindaro Bend, to Kansas City.

Cities adjoining the Missouri River in seven States will attend the meeting to be held here on April 11 and 12 to lay plans to gain Congressional approval of the project at the present session.

Delegations already have been sent from many cities of this section to attend hearings on the bill of which Congressman Cleveland A. Newton, of St. Louis, is the author.

Agitation has been started to interest inland cities, as well as cities lying immediately adjacent to the river to back the bill.

Waterway improvement enthusiasts point out that the inland cities will benefit in long shipments where they can consign their products to nearby river points by rail or other means of transportation and thence by water to their final destination.

Chambers of Commerce are leading the fight to awaken agricultural and business interests to the benefit that would be derived by the improvement of waterways in this part of the country.

The meeting here will take up for discussion that part of the bill providing for deepening the Missouri River channel from the Mississippi River to Kansas City. A proposal to improve the North Missouri will be taken up later.

National authorities on water ways development and improvement will attend the Kansas City meeting and address the delegates.

Improvement of rivers is not being opposed by the railroads, it was pointed out, as not long ago L. W. Baldwin, president of the Missouri Pacific system, declared that from an economic standpoint it was necessary to develop all methods of transportation to the fullest in keeping with the development of the nation.

Development of the waterways Baldwin says, will permit the railroads to give their best service. By improvement of the water systems and highways, railroads would be relieved of unnecessary congestion, he said.

Much freight of certain classes is now being handled by railroads to their discomfort, and improvements such as proposed in the Newton bill would open new channels through which such shipments could be diverted to the benefit of business in general.

The views of President Baldwin are believed to reflect the attitude of other railroad heads, and no organized opposition from the rail sources is anticipated.

Barge rates are approximately one-fifth lower than rail rates, and as the railroads are now pushed almost beyond their limits to handle perishable products and most orders of goods that would be relieved of much of the unnecessary burden under which they now operate and still have sufficient business.

DR. WAGNER GOES BACK TO ATHENS

TIMOTHY HAY MAKES POOR DAIRY FEED

Clover, alfalfa, and soybeans make far better feeds for dairy cows and produce more than twice as much milk, says C. C. Hayden, chief of dairy husbandry, Ohio Experiment Station. Yet questions coming to the department daily reveal the fact that many farmers still feed their milk cows timothy hay and corn stover.

The milk from cows fed mouldy hay or stover and dry grass is low in vitamins. Mr. Hayden continues and is not as valuable for children as that from cows fed bright legume hay. If timothy must be grown for hay it is best if cut very soon after the heads appear.

If no clover or alfalfa is coming on for use next winter, the best substitutes are soybean hay or field peas and oats. The peas and oats are seeded together as soon as the ground can be prepared and the soybeans are seeded after danger of frost.

MINE DAMAGED BY A FLOOD

SCRANTON, Pa., April 9.—With damage estimated at more than a million dollars already done, officials of The Glen Alden Coal Co. spared no effort or expense today in attempting to change the course of the Lackawanna river which late yesterday broke into the Dodge mine and flooded five other Big collieries, throwing six thousand men out of work.

Two men are missing in the mine flood, considered by mining men one of the most serious in the history of the anthracite coal regions.

The missing men are Simon Jones, 55, and Arthur Morgan, 50. They are believed to have been drowned and swept away by the great wall of water which surged into the mines.

Today five hundred men, aided by steam shovels, automobile trucks and mules, continued their desperate efforts to swing the swollen Lackawanna back to its natural course.

Water is rushing into the mines thru the great opening in the Dodge mine at an estimated rate of 200,000 gallons per minute and the lower veins of six mining operations are under water.

The latest plan being entertained by officials of the Glen Alden Company is to run a freight train into the river to check the flood.

ALBANIA MOURNS FOR AMERICANS SLAIN THERE

TIRANA, Albania, April 9.—The bodies of George B. DeLong, of New York and Robert Lewis Coleman of San Francisco who were killed by Albanian brigands were brot here today by motor car.

Practically all the shops in Tirana were closed and immense crowds made a demonstration of friendly sympathy in front of the United States legation.

The automobile bearing the bodies could hardly get thru the jam.

The Albanian chamber of deputies suspended its sitting for ten minutes as a sign of mourning.

Troops are enforcing martial law in the district where the assassination took place Sunday in the mountains along the Tirana-Scutari road.

Conflicting opinions are held but police believe the brigands killed the wealthy Americans, hoping to obtain a large sum of money.

A recent census shows that the horse, instead of becoming a museum curiosity, has increased greatly in numbers.

concerns they represent will stand back of them.

FREDERICKSON TALKS

C. R. Frederickson, president of the American Art Works, and a member of the advisory board of the Ohio Tax Commission, briefly adressed the group. "The situation here is not unusual in the state," he said "Appeals for aid are constantly coming to the attention of the Ohio Tax Commission from cities all over Ohio.

"I believe to combine the two proposed systems of taxation would be the logical thing to do I am thoroly opposed to the Marion tax. Under the constitution of Ohio I believe it would not be effective."

Mr. Frederickson stated that if the council decides in favor of combining the two, it should be strictly an emergency measure and should not be adopted as permanent.

"I do not like a front foot tax that costs 10 per cent to collect," declared E. O Selby. "There are plans whereby taxes can be collected more economically." However, it was explained that the tax can be collected thru city officers and can be done much cheaper than 10 per cent.

OTHER PLANS OFFERED

L. W Leonard suggested an increase in water rent to increase the city's income. A tax on the water works was also suggested by Carl McGinnis and J. S Elliott. It was explained by President Gaumer, however, that the law does not permit the use of one cent of the water rent or water works income except for the extension of the service.

George Mitchell said, "We want to develop a stronger citizenship, and we cannot do so by allowing the citizens to escape from paying for the privileges they enjoy. The plan adopted should be one that does not penalize industry alone."

Mr. Mitchell's statements were upheld by T. L. Montgomery, who said, "There are a large number who could well afford to pay a tax who pay nothing at all. I had the impression the occupational tax was much broader in its scope. The whole burden should not be placed on business. There is surely some measure that will be more general." Mr. Montgomery stated that nearly every employe in the city owns and an automobile, and in connection with this statement someone suggested a tax on gasoline and a tax on automobiles. The gasoline tax, it was stated by one, would come nearer reaching everyone than any plan that could be raised.

Neither the gasoline, automobile or water works tax was given extended consideration last night.

Other interesting talks were given by H. L. Beach, Ramie Curtis, Edgar Marshall, G. W. Cassingham, C. B. Hunt, Louis Glover, William March, Mayor H. B Heaton, C. K. Clemens, Charles Ransom, Jr., T. J. Hanley and council members.

ARRESTER DEVICE PROTECTS COILS IN SET

Allows Static Charges to Leak Around and Not Through the Receiver

By CARLTON E. BUTLER,
Radio Engineer.

Yesterday I explained the reason why an aerial above your home was a protection rather than a hazard. It may seem logical to you that if an aerial will lessen the danger of lightning striking your home that a lightning arrester need not be included in your installation.

The presence of a lightning arrester between the aerial and ground is specified as standard equipment on all radio receiving aerials. The danger of lightning striking your home is lessened, but the danger is still present.

Let me explain to you just what a lightning arrester is and its function on a radio receiving aerial. A lightning arrester is any device which is designed to relieve an electric circuit of high voltages which may occur thereon, the value of which is high enough to damage the insulation or the windings of any instrument in the circuit.

This is only a partial explanation. The lightning arrester must do another thing. It must prevent the flow of ordinary radio currents to ground, yet provide an easy path for the lightning discharge to ground. A positive cutoff during normal operation must be assured so that the radio currents will go through the inductance of the receiver.

The static charges flow through the ground lead, the inductance of the receiver, to the aerial, and leak off to neutralize the charge which has accumulated in the cloud above. This is the cause of the sharp clicking sounds in your receiver during a storm.

The usual type of lightning arrester is provided with a spark gap in which the separation between the two contacts is very small. When static charges become heavy enough to cause damage to the fine wire used in the winding of your inductances, the voltage in the static charges becomes high enough to jump the gap from ground to aerial.

This protects your receiver from injury from excessive current flow of static charges coming from the earth and going to the aerial.

HANDBAG IS LOST

Former Mayor W. S. Tish said today he has not recovered the black hand bag containing a large quantity of lock nuts and nipples which was lost several days ago between the Wheeling Station and Park-av and Main-st when it fell off the fender of an automobile. The contents of the bag are for use in Mr. Tish's pottery, and are worthless for any other purpose. A reward has been offered for the return of the bag and contents.

OLYMPIC COACH PICKS OUT FIVE BEST ATHLETES

Meredith, Ray, Sheppard, Thorpe and Kohlemainen are Chosen

PHILADELPHIA, April 9. — "Ted" Meredith, "Joe" Ray, "Mel" Sheppard, "Jim" Thorpe and Hannes Kohlemainen are the five greatest athletes that Lawson Robertson, coach of the American Olympic team, ever knew. So he declared the other day; and, being an authority who brought to Penn the intercollegiate indoor title two years in succession and who since 1902 has had his finger on the so-called pulse of track affairs, he has his reasons for putting his stardom stamp on the quintet named and for placing them on pedestals in his private Hall of Athletic Fame.

It's rather peculiar, and Robertson commented upon it, that three of the stars were bricklayers.

"Meredith learned his trade at the Williamson Trade School," the Red and Blue coach smilingly declared; Kohlemainen worked for seven years at bricklaying, and Joie Ray put in some time laying bricks. Figure it out for yourself if there is something in bricklaying that makes a man a great athlete."

Robertson picked the peerless "Ted" first, because he excelled perhaps every man who ever wore a spiked shoe and second, because he is a conspicuous example of the model athlete — a model for the youth of today who wants to become an athlete.

SMALL BUT GOOD.

"There was a boy who apparently was small, yet so well was he built, with a body that gave him great power and legs that held wonderful speed, that he excelled perhaps any man who ever wore track shoes. That is what the athlete today should strive for — a body that is big and robust and that will carry him through when his legs begin to sag and show the ravages of time," Coach Robertson said.

Meredith's salient achievements include establishment of world's records for the 440 yards, the half-mile and the 800 metres.

Ray, in the Olympic coach's estimation, is the perfect running machine.

"That's why I pick him," Robertson declared. "Whenever you watch Ray run—smooth, no jerking, no leaping, such a perfect running stride all the time—you begin to think of the poetry of motion. Joie Ray has won perfection in running — perfection in style and judgment. He uses wonderful headwork.

WAS NEVER BEATEN.

"I can't leave out 'Mel' Sheppard," Robertson continued. "He is now coach of the Millrose A. A. and won the national championships and was a great middle-distance runner. Sheppard's great value, and the reason for my choice, lay in the fact that he was a wonderful competitive athlete. If you look over his records you'll find that he was not so fast, but nobody ever beat him. He could lick any of 'em, and he did when ever he got a chance."

"Jim" Thorpe, he said, will be classed as one of the greatest athletes we have ever produced because of his baseball and football ability and no mean ability in field and track sports.

In Kohlemainen Robertson sees in many respects the greatest distance runner that ever lived. He won three world's records at Stockholm in the 1912 Olympics and holds all American records from three to ten miles.

"Remember how he won the Marathon in 1912 in Sweden," the Olympic coach enthused, "and came back eight years later at Antwerp and repeated his triumph? He's entered from Finland this year at Paris, and if he wins (he has a good chance, by the way) he will have accomplished a feat never before recorded and which may never be equalled."

HOFF LOOKS GOOD.

According to reports he has received, Robertson said, the outstanding Olympic athlete at this year's meet in Paris may be Hoff, a Norweigan, now rated Europe's greatest athlete.

The coach of the Yankee Olympic team began his track career under the colors of the now extinct Knickerbocker A. C. back in 1902. Later he joined the Irish-American A. C., attained fame as a competitive athlete and became coach of the club. His tutoring ability gained recognition, and he did his stuff at New York University and Brooklyn College, coming to the University of Pennsylvania eight years ago. He reached the pinnacle of his coaching career when he was chosen head mentor of the team that will represent the United States at the Paris Olympics.

JUNIOR HIGH IS EASY VICTOR IN PAROCHIAL GAME

The Junior high school team defeated the Parochial basketball aggregation Tuesday evening in the Sacred Heart gym by a score of 34 to 16.

The first half was hotly contested but the second semester was a little one-sided. The first half was 16 to 14 in favor of the Juniors. The clever passwork and basketball shooting of T. Stull, "Dit" Stull and "Ramie" Mirise of the high school five ran the score up to 34 to 16.

The Stulls and Mirise were the outstanding stars of the game, while Endres and Skelton shone out for the Parochials. This marked the last game of the season for the Juniors.

On Friday night, Troop 6 of Sacred Heart church and the fast Zanesville Scout club will play on the Sacred Heart gym.

Politics In Action

VARIOUS estimates place the cost of the bonus bill passed by the House at from two to four billions. The measure was passed in the record breaking time of forty minutes. The bill to reduce federal taxes a mere $300,000,000 for the fiscal year was before the House for three months and the buck finally passed to the Senate.

The chances are that so venomous is the blight of politics that the tax reduction measure will yet fall by the wayside. It is also said that a presidential veto awaits the bonus at the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue. It is also probably true that the bonus, even if it succeeds in running the entire gauntlet will be satisfactory neither to Congress nor to the soldiers. Tax reduction of any kind is evidently out of favor with all kinds of politicians.

Such is politics. If the average American was as big a fool in his private business affairs as he is in regard to partisan politics the country would be a financial wreck in two weeks. It may be true that our present form of government is built around the two party system, but even if that is true it is no excuse for the blind partisanship that most of us so stupidly exhibit.

In The Valley Of The Kings

IN THE conflict that has brot to a halt the work of the American and English archeologists at the tomb of Tutankhamen the Egyptian Government has taken an aggressive attitude. Whatever provocation it may have had, it is to be hoped that soon a way will be found to adjust the differences that have arisen. By the outside world, little concerned as it is with the merits of the dispute, the resumption of operations at Luxor is awaited with impatience.

For there in the Valley of the Kings has been uncovered the most complete view of the life of the Pharaohs ever revealed to modern eyes.

The first gain is to archeology, but the service rendered is more far-reaching than that, for acheology holds the key to greatly larger regions of experience in the life of the race. Of Egyptian art, history, written language and industry in some of its highest forms we already know much more because of the excavations at Luxor, and there will be much more for study when the experts are permitted to return to their labors. They have opened a mine of which the wealth is nowhere near exhausted.

Is The Crow A Nuisance?

SMARTEST of native birds, the crow has been denounced in unmeasured terms by some as a highwayman and bandit, the enemy of farmers and a cold blooded murderer among our other native birds. One powder company, for advertising purposes, announces a crow-killing contest with prizes aggregating $2,500 in merchandise.

On the other hand the crow has his friends. Governor Baxter of Maine has issued a vigorous protest against advertising the powder business by this method. He says it is cruel and unwarranted and offers to prove that His Crowship is not nearly as black as he has been painted either by nature or his enemies. Regardless of what he says in favor of the crow, one point he makes is well taken. He declares that in this three-month crow hunt, inestimable damage will be wrought thru the destruction of other birds whose usefulness to the farmer and our forest and fruit trees is not questioned.

The Audobon societies of the country are also up in arms for and not against the crow. They argue that the crow does more good than harm. These societies, which are organized for the useful purpose of saving the nation's birds, say that for all the corn the crow destroys he pays for tenfold by his destruction of the early insect pests.

The same arguments can be applied to most of our birds. People both in country and in town who have cherry trees complain bitterly of the robins. The woodpecker also demands his share of the apples. But these and all other species of native birds wage incessant warfare on the myriads of insects which, in turn, are savagely bent on destroying the things human beings depend upon for life.

It is an endless warfare from the highest to the lowest forms of creation. What is life to one, is death to another form. If the crow, for instance, takes his toll from the newly planted corn field, he repays man by his shrewd and constant attacks on man's enemies. Whether the evil he does overbalances the good we do not profess to say. But before the crow is driven from this county, as has been tentatively planned, his good as well as bad points should be carefully estimated and his virtues as well as his faults weighed in the balance.

As a general proposition the ornithologists make a strong case when their say experience has proved in countless tests that where bird life is exterminated because this or that species preys on the things man wants for his own use, that these very things suffer vastly more destruction thru innumerable other pests than they did when the birds were permitted to have their way.

The balances of nature are nearly always just. We may not understand her ways, but it is no fault of nature's. It is the human problem to study nature and to conform man's ways to them. Any other procedure generally results badly for man.

wearer. Worst be those fortune hunting gazers is seems to me as tho one were putting a stained glass window in one's house. Still there are thousands of girls seeking the privilege.

Many of the young men are trained criminals who have been driven from world capital. House detectives watch them but somehow they manage to make their flirtatious advances seem more in recognition of long acquaintance.

There was a westerner recently who had thotlessly lighted his pipe in one of the big hotel lobbies. An attendant murmured discreet disapproval. "It is quite all right, said the western patron, "but I do not believe my pipe is as objectionable as your group of foreign lounge lizards."

The new type of lobby hound has supplanted the "we boys" crowd that once infested the Waldorf's Peacock Ally. The "we boys" were sellers of worthless stocks. They bragged of high connections and were adept swindlers. It took the Waldorf five years to keep them barred out.

There is something vastly amusing to me in the haughty grilled homes of the exclusive rich in New York. The moated castle is no more remote from bourgoise intrusion. I saw a butler unlocking a series of huge grilled gates the other morning to reach outside to get a bottle of milk. He looked extremely foolish. One can imagine the lowering of the drawbridge and the hoisting of the portcullis at night for the mere formality of putting out the cat.

I was window shopping with Irvin Cobb along Madison avenue the other evening. I know of no man who gets so much romance as he does in idling along from window to window. Ancient carpet rugs, old candlesticks, blue china of the Victorian period samovars and what not stir him to fascinating reminiscing. In front of a fruiterer's window bright with pyramided apples, luscious hanging grapes, yellow oranges and bananas he stood for many moments in retrospection.

CHARGES DUPONT CO. AND L. & N. RY. WITH FRAUD

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Charges that the government was defrauded during the war by the DuPont Powder Co. and the Louisville & Nashville railroad were made today before the Wheeler-Brookhart committee by George W. Stock, a government accountant, who surveyed the Old Hickory powder plant in Tennessee, a subsidiary operated for the government.

Stock said he recommended that $5,000,000 could be recovered from the company, while others set the amount as high as $20,000,000. He declared that his secret plans of investigation for the Old Hickory case were turned over by the department of justice attorneys for the DuPont interests, thereby revealing the basis of the government's side of the case and preventing him from gathering evidence.

For the cop who does pinching there is no forgiveness here, were he victim of a lynching, all his enemies would cheer. I was hitting up some thirty, and you say 'twas fifty miles; and the trick you play is dirty, fit for cops and crocodiles. Thirty miles, so help me Stephen, and I'm pulled before the beak; but, I bet you I'll get even ere the passage of a week. I will have your badge and billy, strip you of your uniform. I will see you looking sulty, I will kick up quite a storm. For my pull is truly mighty with the well known powers that be, and policemen vain and flighty fall before my snickersnee. At the lifting of my finger cops are fired from off the force; on the payroll you won't linger, for your work is raw and coarse. "IF ANYONE WANTS TO KNOW ABOUT TANLAC LET THEM SEE ME"

Says Joseph Baker Of Memphis In Praising World's Greatest Tonic —Tells Of Recovery.

"If anybody wants to find out about Tanlac, just let them see me," is the hearty suggestion of Joseph H. Baker, 550 North Third St., Memphis, Tenn.

Mr. Baker went overseas with the famous Thirtieth Division during the World War and participated in the St. Mihiel, Valley of Worres and Argonne drives, having been cited for bravery in action in the Argonne. He is now a popular member of the Memphis Fire Department.

"When I came back from over there," said he, "I was in a mighty bad fix. I had been gassed and after getting home I got down with pneumonia. This left me all in, without appetite, down in weight, liver out of fix, and suffering from constipation, biliousness and headaches without end.

"Tanlac put me to eating as never before, shot my weight up fifteen pounds and made a strong, well man of me—and I feel fine even to this day. I can't say enough for Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 Million bottles sold.

REPARATIONS EXPERTS MAKE REPORT; GIVE SUGGESTIONS FOR STABILIZING GERMANY

BY HARRY FLORY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, April 9—German capital of all classes held abroad is officially estimated by the McKenna committee of international reparations experts at 6,750,000,000 gold marks or approximately $1,687,500,000. The committee emphasized that this total is purely an estimate as it is impossible to determine the actual sum.

The report of this committee, transmitted today by Reginald McKenna, the chairman, to the inter-allied reparations commission estimates the foreign currency in Germany at 1,200,000,000 gold marks and the real estate and securities owned in Germany by foreigners at approximately 1,500,000,000 gold marks.

PARIS, April 9—A unanimous agreement has been reached upon the details of the world's most formidable financial problem—setting bankrupt Germany upon her feet—it was revealed today by a covering letter sent to the inter-allied reparations commission along with the report of the international committee of experts of which Charles Gates Dawes, Chicago, is chairman.

All the suggestions and recommendations are based upon hard headed business principles, justice and mutual interest. Germany must pay taxes to the limit of her capacity. A loan is proposed for the German government.

The covering letter follows—

"The President of the reparations commission:

"Sir — Your committee has unanimously adopted a report upon the means of balancing the German budget and the measures to be taken to stabilize its currency which I now have the honor to submit.

"Deeply impressed by a sense of its responsibility to your commission and to the universal conscience, the committee bases its plan upon those principles of justice, fairness and mutual interest in the supremacy of which not only the creditors of Germany, and Germany herself, but the world also have a vital and enduring concern.

"With these principles fixed and accepted in that common good faith which is the foundation of all business and best safeguard for universal peace, the committee's recommendations must be considered not as inflicting penalties but as suggesting means for assisting the economic recovery of all European peoples and the entry upon a new period of happiness and prosperity unmenaced by war.

"Since, as a result of the war, the creditors of Germany are paying taxes to the limit of their capacity, so also must Germany be encouraged from year to year to the limit of her capacity. This is in accord with the just and underlying principle of the treaty of Versailles, reaffirmed by Germany in its note of May 19, 1919, that the German scheme of taxation must be 'fully as heavy proportionately as that of any of the powers represented on the commission.' More than this limit could not be expected and less than this would relieve Germany from the common hardship and give her an unfair advantage in the industrial competition of the future. The plan of the committee embodies this principle.

"The plan has been made to include flexible adjustments which from the beginning tend to produce a maximum of contributions consistent with the continued and increasing productivity of Germany, the conservative estimates of payments to be made in the near future are dictated by business prudence in outlining the basis of a loan and should not destroy the perspective as to the effects to be registered in the aggregate of eventual payments which will annually increase.

"With normal economic conditions and with productivity restored in Germany the most hopeful estimates of the amounts receivable are justified. Without such restoration, such payments as may be obtained will be of little value in meeting the urgent needs of creditor nations.

"To ensure the permanence of the new economic peace between the allied governments and Germany which involves the economic adjustments presented by the plan, there are provided the counterparts of those usual economic precautions against demoralization which are recognized as essential in all business relations involving express obligations.

"The existence of safeguards in no way hampers or embrasses the case of ordinary business contracts. The thoro effectiveness of these safeguards should not embarrass the normal economic functioning of Germany and is of fundamental importance to Germany and her creditors.

"Great care has been taken in fixing the conditions of the supervision over Germany's internal organization so as to impose a minimum of interference consistent with proper protection. The plan submitted is fair and reasonable in its nature, and if accepted, is likely to lead to an ultimate and lasting peace. The rejection of these proposals by the German government means the deliberate choice of a continuance of economic demoralization, eventually involving her people in hopeless misery.

"In the preparation of the report the committee has carefully covered a broad field of investigation. It has had the constant co-operation of able staffs of experts in gathering information, digesting it and presenting it. The committee has conducted on the ground an examination of officials of the German government and representatives of German labor, agriculture and industry. It has received from the German government and its representatives voluminous and satisfactory answers in response to written inquiries. In connection with various features of its report, both for the purpose of gathering information and for advice, the committee called to its assistance outside experts of international reputation. The published reports and statements of economists of world wide standing have been in its hands. It has had also the benefit of the accumulated information heretofore gathered by the reparations commission."

The letter reveals the full committee held up meetings since January 14 of this year, the sub-committee on stabilization of currency held 68 meetings and the sub-committee on the balancing of the German budget held 60 meetings.

"In speaking of my colleagues and as bearing upon the value of this report" the letter continues, "I feel that I should make known to the reparation commission and to the world that their governments have in no case limited their complete independence of judgment and action, either before or after their appointment by the reparation commission. Limited only by the powers granted by the commission, each of my colleagues has performed his work as a free agent, these men searching for truth and advice thereon were answerable only to their consciences. In granting this freedom the governments have on the same lines followed the commission's spirit intent in constituting the committee, but in so doing they have paid the highest tribute which governments can bestow, namely complete confidence in a time of crisis in human affairs in their vision, in their independence of thot and above all in their spirit of high and sincere purpose, my colleagues have shown themselves worthy of this trust.

"That their work, which I now place in the commission's hands, may assist in the discharge of the commission's great responsibilities is their prayer and the knowledge hereafter that it has done so will be their full reward.

"Signed

"Charles G. Dawes, Chairman."

Revelations of a Wife

The Way Madge Startled Dicky.

THE sudden confirmation of my vague surmises concerning Mollie Fawcett was like a blow in my face. Indeed, I do not think I would have been more humiliated had Dicky actually struck me.

Upon one point, however, his revelation had been involuntary. He had not meant to let me know that Mollie Fawcett had been present upon the occasion which sent him home to me with his head bound up and bleeding.

Moreover, I could see by the quick furtive glance he gave me that he hoped I had not understood the meaning of his allusion.

I realized that I was lowering my own standards immeasurably in this scene between us—I generally have taken refuge in silence when Dicky is in one of his rages—but something about this latest discovery had enraged me beyond the point where I could think clearly.

I was able to keep my voice low and even, a procedure which I have found angers Dicky far more than if I shrieked to Heaven, but there my self-control ended. I could not keep from him any longer the knowledge I had of that night. For the moment I was some one entirely outside of my normal self.

Blank Astonishment.

I suddenly rose from my chair, my hand almost touching Dicky as I did so. He stepped back, and the single glance I threw him showed me that he was puzzled and a bit uneasy about what my next movement would be. Without a second glance at him, I went straight to the desk, and took from it the parcel I had hidden there on that memorable night.

With shaking fingers I tore off the paper and dumped the contents, the two handkerchiefs and the embroidered collar which had served as bandages for Dicky's wounded head, and which I had found stuffed into the waste-basket after he had insisted upon dressing the wound himself.

"It will not be necessary for you to tell me the 'real dope,' as you call it," I said icily. "I am perfectly aware that Miss Fawcett was the good Samaritan who bound up your wounds, and I must beg your pardon and hers for my delay in returning to you her property. But my absence at the farm will perhaps plead for me."

Into Dicky's face flashed a look of blank astonishment.

"You mean——"

"Look here," he stormed. "I may be pretty bad, but this performance is about as raw a piece of work as I ever saw from a woman of your supposed ideals. Snooping around like a lady's maid in a French farce and searching a waste-basket for evidence against your husband! Those things were wadded up as bandages. I suppose you confided in the janitor's wife and had her wash and iron them."

There was an uneasy note beneath the sneer, and I answered both promptly.

"I am not in the habit of talking over my affairs with anyone. I washed and ironed the things myself."

"How do I know what you're in the habit of doing?" he retorted, but I detected the relief in his voice. "I'd have staked everything in the world on the fact that you never have had the snooping habits of the ordinary jealous wife."

His words only voiced my own sentiments concerning my actions. I had scored myself a hundred times for it, but hearing him make the accusation suddenly justified me to myself besides increasing my anger against him.

"You mean that you always have banked on it, don't you?" I queried smoothly.

Dicky clinched his palms into his fists, keeping them rigidly by his sides. I knew that in his heart was the primitive rage which would have led a man less veneered with civilization to knock me down. And through my malevolent gratification at having so enraged him ran a curious humiliated sense that I was cutting but a sorry figure in this quarrel, that, though in all conscience I was the aggrieved one, he had managed to put me in the wrong.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am going with a young man four years my senior. I am very much in love with him. He seems to have the same affection for me. My parents and brothers object to my going with him, but they say that they have nothing against him. TOOTSIE.

TOOTSIE: Probably your parents and brothers object on account of your age. However, it is always best to be governed by their wishes, and you will never regret having done so. Your parents' word should be law to you.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am a girl in my teens and I am going with a young man twenty-five years old. He wants me to marry him. I like him when I am in his company, but when I am out and see other young men I like them, too. Do you think this young man really loves me? BLUE EYES.

BLUE EYES: Evidently the young man cares for you, or he would not have asked you to become his wife. However, if you cannot decide to your own satisfaction to say "yes," better wait until your mind is free from doubt.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT Middle-of-the-Roaders

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

POOR man, he's trying to keep in the middle of the road, doing his very best to be fair and honest and just, and the only thing he seems to get by it is unpopularity.

Now, if he'd just "take sides" he'd have some friends anyway.

His two old friends have quarreled and it makes him miserable to think of it; and when he's with John he always takes Henry's side, and when he's with Henry he sees things from John's eyes.

He's doing it to bring them both around to some sort of common sense.

Is he accomplishing his purpose?

I'm afraid not. John wonders what Henry ever saw in him and Henry thinks that the old friend is a good deal of a bore.

Now, if he'd only side with Henry when he's with Henry, and side with John when he's with John, he'd be a lot more popular—wouldn't he?

Malice Is Poor Company

People don't really want honest opinion. What they want is prejudice.

Give them that and plenty of it and have it on their side of the question and you'll have to use a dozen pairs of hands to count your friends.

For awhile.

Oh, yes, it works—for awhile.

Prejudice and bigotry and hatred and envy are never dull. Not when you first meet them.

When Billy first begins to make fun of Jim it's rather amusing, and you can't help laughing, no matter how much you really like Jim.

On Monday night it's funny.

Tuesday evening it's entertaining.

Wednesday night it's a bit of a bore.

And by Thursday you make up your mind that if Billy begins to make fun of Jim again you are going to scream.

Malice is poor company, after all.

You've seen her, haven't you—the spiteful, envious, jealous little person who can scent a quarrel a mile off?

She hasn't been to see you in weeks, but the day after you and your best friend have a little tiff there she is at the door, alert, eager, delighted.

The Real Friend's Way

Of course she doesn't act delighted. Not she, she's too clever. She's sorry, she says. Oh, so awfully sorry, to think that you and Ruth have had a misunderstanding. Of course she's always wondered how long you were going to put up with Ruth and her airs and affectation, but—and before you know it you've poured out the whole story of your quarrel and everything you say is absolutely right, only not enough so—Ruth always was a nobody and a nothing. You've thrown your time away with her all these years and maybe if you knew the things she says about you—and you get more and more angry and then all at once she goes a little too far and your heart melts and you hurry up and get rid of her and run to the 'phone and call up Ruth and in ten minutes the old friendship and the old faith and the old trust are as strong as ever, and where is the partisan and the flatterer then?

Out in the cold where she belongs.

Yes, it's the real friend who takes the middle of the road, the real friend who tries to make you see the other fellow's point of view, the real friend who won't admit that you are always absolutely perfect.

Give me the man who walks in the middle of the road for my friend.

He may not be wildly popular, but, dear me, what a good old reliable, honest, faithful, truthful comfort he is, after all.

YOUR HEALTH

Scarlet Fever Facts for Everyone in the House

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. COPELAND

OUR ideas about scarlet fever have changed very much since the time when the little patient with this disease was quarantined, the house placarded, the schools closed when a case developed among the pupils, and children frightened into walking on the other side of the street from the house with a "contagious" card on it.

In those days we believed that the disease was carried by a sort of emanation, or atmosphere, which surrounded the patient and infected everything he touched and even the air he breathed.

While the particular germ responsible for scarlet fever is not known, scientists now believe that the disease is conveyed only by the discharges from the body of the sick person, especially the discharges from the nose and mouth. The "peeling" or "scaling" period, or the "period of desquamation," as the doctors call it, is now feared merely because it coincides with the time when the discharges from the nose and throat are greatest.

Scarlet fever comes on suddenly and without warning. Vomiting may be the first symptom. Then the fever appears. The face is flushed and the skin dry. The temperature is usually high—as high as 104 or 105 degrees on the first day. The mouth and tongue are dry, also the throat. The tonsils are apt to be swollen.

The eruption, or rash, appears first on the neck and chest, and spreads until the entire body is a brilliant scarlet color. After two or three days it begins to fade and in a week or ten days from the beginning of the attack the redness and itching have disappeared.

When the redness and fever have subsided the skin is rough and dry, and pretty soon it begins to peel off. This is the "period of desquamation," and it lasts two or three weeks. Flakes or scales may be brushed from all parts of the body.

During this period vaseline, or other grease, rubbed on the skin will assist the process of desquamation and promote the comfort of the patient.

Proper bathing and care in nursing the patient will assist recovery. The medication will be prescribed by the family doctor.

He will also watch the sufferer closelyto prevent the development of any complications. The worst feature of the disease is that it paves the way to so many secondary troubles. Among these are disease of the ear and mastoid, inflammation of the joints, heart trouble, infection of the glands, and various nervous conditions.

No matter how light the attack of scarlet fever may be, there must be the greatest care to prevent such after effects.

Answers to Health Questions

S. J. W. Q.—My eyes and nose run water continually. Will you please tell me what will stop it?

A.—You should consult a nose specialist for an examination to determine just what the trouble is, and the treatment necessary. There is a canal from the eye to the nose, and if this is not open symptoms such as you describe often follow.

PERPLEXED. Q.—How can I remove scabs from my baby's head? I have tried vaseline and hot water without success.

A.—Do not use water. Wash your baby's head with olive oil twice a week.

H. A. D. Q.—My jaw bones get stiff and crack when I eat. I have two sets of false teeth. Can you advise me regarding this condition?

A.—I would suggest that you consult your dentist. This condition may be due to the false teeth. Perhaps they do not fit properly.

BOBBY. Q.—Please advise me how to enlarge the pupils of my eyes. 2.—How can one soften the skin?

A.—This cannot be done without interfering with the vision.

2.—Wash with castile soap and warm water and apply cold cream.

MRS. J. M. B. Q.—Will you please tell me whether cod liver oil will build up the system of a person suffering from a nervous breakdown?

A.—Yes, since this is a good tonic and builder for the system.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Significant Incidents in the Lives of Famous Women

By MARK STUYVESANT

How Lady Nithsdale Cleverly Saved Her Husband.

IN 1715, the Earl of Nithsdale was a prisoner in the Tower of London. He was condemned to death for aiding the movement to put James, the Old Pretender, on the throne.

His wife, Lady Nithsdale was frantic when she heard this awful news and left her home in Scotland, traveling through a terrible storm and went to London.

Here she met with a disappointment, for the Governor of the Tower of London would only allow her to see her husband on the condition that she, too, would become a prisoner. For that was a common practice in those days.

Knowing full well that as a prisoner she could not help her husband, Lady Nithsdale declined this offer and immediately set about to find a way of effecting his release.

Little by little, she gained the confidence of the guards at the Tower and was allowed to visit her husband daily.

All the while she was doing everything she could do to secure a pardon for her husband. But she failed.

Twenty-four hours before his execution was to take place she decided on a scheme for his deliverance.

Lady Nithsdale went to the Tower presumably to say farewell to her husband.

With her she took two friends. One of the ladies was Mrs. Mills and the second, a Mrs. Morgan. Each in turn Lady Nithsdale took in to say good-by to her husband. And as each entered, she fearlessly played the part in the scheme Lady Nithsdale had so carefully planned.

First, Mrs. Mills entered. She wore concealed garments, which she took off—an entire costume worked out in every detail.

Then entered Mrs. Morgan who took off her outer garments. These Lady Nithsdale quickly put on her husband. When Mrs. Morgan left the Tower she wore the clothes Mrs. Mills had left for her.

She Bade Him a Supposed Good-by

In this way, the two women and the Earl left the prison. Brave Lady Nithsdale remained behind in the cell carrying on an imaginary conversation with her husband and thus allowed the party to get clear of the Tower.

Then she bade a supposed good-night to her husband and quietly passed by the guards, entered her carriage and drove away.

One can easily imagine the strain under which this brave woman had been in her supreme effort for self-control and in the drama which she so skilfully acted.

King George, upon hearing of the Earl's escape, flew into a rage and at once ordered the arrest of Lady Nithsdale. But this clever woman had hurried to Scotland where her child was hidden and fled to France where she joined her husband.

She Discusses an Unusually Striking Street Costume.

MADAME is continually designing smart clothes for the st

One of t ...g t producers came in today to ...k to her about costuming his new comedy.

"I like your things, Madame, because you have such a knack for knowing what will be effective on the stage," I heard him tell her.

"I always go on the principle that my stage costumes should be unusual and striking," Madame told him. "I feel that they must possess those two recommendations to assist their appearance on the stage."

"So many women who come to the theatre are so vitally interested in the clothes worn, that I feel we must have the loveliest things possible," the producer said.

"Of course, the first reason that I like your clothes is that I want the best of everything, to make my plays successful," he added.

"Certainly," Madame agreed.

"I realize, too, that many women count on the clothes they see on the stage to give them indications of the season's smartest and newest trends," Madame said.

"Well, I must show you the sketch I've made for your leading lady's street costume in the first act," she added.

"Capital," the producer said. "Should be here any minute. Of course, leading ladies' needs must be a trifle late in arriving at their modiste's shop," he said with a smile.

"No hurry," Madame assured him. "I've already tried different colors against her hair and face, and I've selected this the exact shade we will need."

She handed him a watercolored sketch of one of the most stunning frocks I've seen in a long time.

"The material for this is to be a silk the softest cash brown I can find," Madame told him.

"It looks as smart as can be," the producer said, with a well pleased intonation.

"The border down the side and the collar and cuffs are brown satin," Madame continued. "This will give the high-light which the frock needs, and the gold thread that outlines the cuffs and border will add the finishing touch of brightness."

"Delightful," said the pretty brown-haired actress, who had arrived by this time.

"And I adore the hat," she added.

"Brown is your color, with your auburn hair and eyes," Madame told her, with a pat on the shoulder.

"The satin hat, perfectly plain and turning back from your face, will complete as stunning a costume as I've made for the stage in these many years," Madame added.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 9.

A day of confusing forces is forecast from the aspect of the movement of planets. It will probably be a day of unexpected events. Nevertheless it may be well to remain quiet and to resist the strong inclination to make sudden changes or to travel. There seems to be a tendency toward restlessness. Speculation should be avoided and no money risks taken. These in the employment of others are under favorable conditions. New projects may be entertained for future action.

Those whose birthday it is are under a rule of contradictory influences to attempt important changes or travel. It may be well to resist this impulse. The money should not be subjected to any sort of risk. Those in the employment of others are under fortunate rule. A child born on this day may be restless unless it is carefully trained, but it should be held to a settled place in the employment of others if it is to make its best success in life.

Are You Planning New Paper for Your Home This Spring?

WALL paper and Spring are affinities of long standing. Each Spring, in selecting our new wall paper, we feel convinced that the papers were never as beautiful before. This year is no exception to the rule. They certainly are suited to all tastes and are offered at all prices.

Perhaps the chintz patterns show a greater variety than ever before. They are being used not only for bedrooms but for living-rooms as well. The backgrounds are in cream, dove gray and soft tan colors, and the colored motifs are as delicate as Persian-colored dreams, the strongest color in itself being the one with which the draperies are matched.

Old-fashioned picture papers in modernized colorings and drawings are among the newest offerings, the pictures standing out clearly against very soft backgrounds. Some of the old-fashioned designs are known as "Roosevelt papers," as they are copies of those used on the walls of the Roosevelt memorial house. Some of the large picture patterns are used where the walls are panelled, which makes them very effective.

One of the newest features in papering is known as "antiquing." The room is first papered with gay-colored paper of the best quality where the figures have been done with oil instead of water colors. The paper is then varnished. When it is dry and hard, another coat is given. The effect is like a tapestry or a finely-panelled wall. Where a paper with watercolored figures is used, it is safer to cover it first with a glue size, which sets the colors. When the size is dry, the paper can safely be varnished. If the varnish is applied without this precaution, the colors are very apt to run and look badly. No matter how gay the colors of the paper may be, the varnish will soften them, make them appear like tapestry and deepen to rich tints, their once strong colors. Some of the gayer picture papers are just the thing for sun parlors and upper halls.

Grass cloth papers are popular with conservative people who do not pay strict attention to changing fashions and they are certainly very rich in appearance. The self-colored figured papers in the old damask designs are enjoying renewed popularity. They make excellent hall or dining-room papers. Gold striped paper with a wide gray or tan stripe between the gold stripes has dainty chintz motifs spaced down the plain stripes and makes very lovely living-room paper.

So-called "lattice papers," the lattice being used in the design for climbing rose vines, are very pretty and come in more attractive designs than in past seasons. Stipple plain or embossed papers are about the only kind with which borders are used and these borders are not more than two or three inches wide.

Where blue-line tiled paper is used in a bathroom, it is varnished with one or two coats, which makes it waterproof. In this way it lasts much longer than when plain paper is used. Plain papers in solid colors and of heavy cartridge varieties are not seen as frequently as formerly, though many persons still prefer them to figured papers.

Plain gold paper, rough or smooth, is seen in mansions or halls that are well lighted, though it is considered a little too dressy for other uses. It shows best with old-red draperies or deep Chinese blue draperies. There are quite a number of versions of black and white paper. These still enjoy a vogue, and they make attractive rooms when the right hangings and furniture are chosen to go with them.

A new idea in using Mother Goose and other fairy-story papers in the nursery is to place them on a panelled wall with every other panel papered in a plain color. This makes them appear like pictures and the effect is quite striking. Chambray paper in delicate colors is used with this paper. Period papers come in richer colorings than ever and the chintzes to match may be bought for slipping the furniture.

Good Night Stories

DOTTY HAS A CHAT WITH MRS. SOOTY WING BUTTERFLY.

FOR the third time, Dotty sailed her hat into the air in hope that it would cover the little sooty-looking butterfly. But back it came to the grass and the wee little bit of a butterfly flapped its wings through the air and settled on a blossom near Dotty's nose.

"Goodness me, but you're persistent for a little girl," the wee butterfly laughed. "What did you want to catch me for, anyway? I'm not what most youngsters would call pretty."

"Oh, I just wanted to see you more closely," replied Dotty. "You see, we're studying butterflies in our class-room, and I had never seen one just like you. I didn't mean to harm you and intended to let you go as soon as I had a good look at you. I really think you are pretty. Of course, your black dress is not so lovely as the one Mrs. Yellow Butterfly wears, but the five white dots near your front wing make it rather striking-looking. May I ask just what you are called?"

"Certainly, you may," replied the wee black butterfly. "I'm Mrs.

The Wee Butterfly Laughed.

Sooty Wing. Isn't that a funny name to give a nice respectable mother?"

"Sooty Wing," repeated Dotty softly. "Oh, I think that is a cunning name. When one takes a second glance at your wings, the color does look like soot. And you say you have a family?"

"I should have a family if nothing happens to them," replied Mrs. Sooty Wing, very proudly. "I placed enough eggs on the leaves of this pigweed here." She flew to the weed in question and gave a shout of joy for there on the upper surface of the leaves lay a crowd of fuzzy little caterpillars, all raising their heads and gaping around to see the big place they had just opened their eyes upon. "It has been five days since I put those eggs there," said Mrs. Sooty Wing.

"My, but they hatch quickly," replied Dotty, touching one of the caterpillars with her finger. "How soon will they turn into butterflies?"

"It will not be so very long now," replied the proud mother. "You will see them begin to make their own little cradles by cutting out the edges of the leaves and curling them over, fastening them together with silken threads.

"In these leaf cases they stay until a certain time, then out they come. By this time, they are too large to rest on one leaf, so they sew two leaves together. In these cradles they stay until they have had the required amount of rest, then they come forth and spin a silken cocoon, into which they crawl.

"When they come out from the second cocoon, they are full-fledged butterflies. You know when one is doing what one knows one should do, time flies. You would probably think it a long time if I told you that when these caterpillars go into their last silken cocoon, they will stay there until next Spring."

"Goodness!" laughed Dotty. Just then the schoolbell rang. Bidding Mrs. Sooty Wing good-by and thanking her for her talk about herself, Dotty trotted off to school.

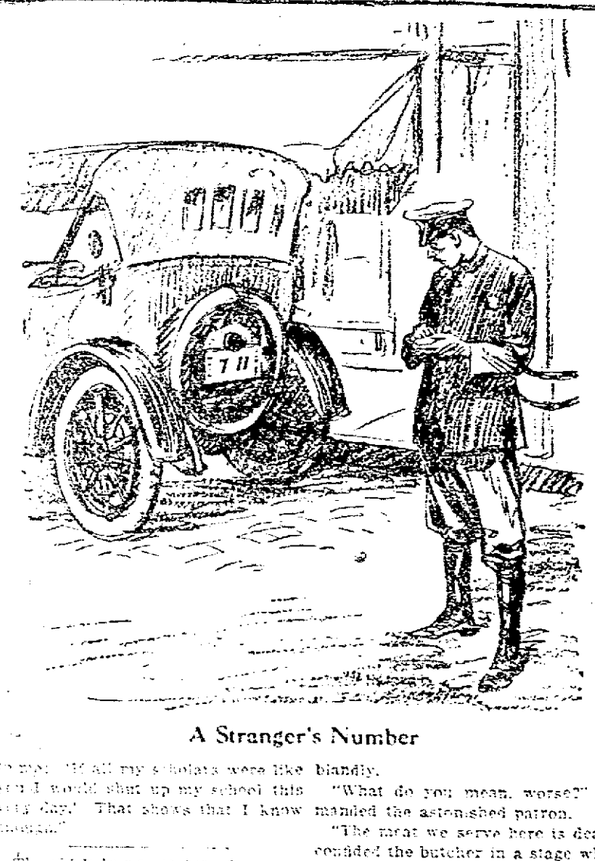
LONG, long years ago I lived almost altogether near the sea, but nowadays my kind are found most everywhere in the northern part of America. I am known as the CANADIAN GOOSE, but some people call me a swan-goose on account of my very long neck. My head and neck feathers are black, and so are my bill and feet, while my back is mixed with lighter colors. You may guess, from my being called a swan-goose, that I am very large and so I am. You will find me as large or even much larger than the tame geese you see out in the country.

Now you're ready to draw me, so take a pencil and starting at dot number 1, continue to draw a line through dots 2, 3, 4, and so on back to dot 1, and you will see me. After drawing me you may think that my neck looks rather short, but look at me real closely and you'll see why I appear this way. If you don't, ask mother or daddy and they will tell you. And be sure and don't forget to read the interesting stories we animals tell you about ourselves in each Pencil Picture.

TRUE TO LIFE



A Stranger's Number

"Your husband is an inventor, I believe?"

"Oh, yes! Some of his excuses for stopping out late at night are in use all over the world!"

"What is an abstract noun, Nellie?" asked the teacher of a bright little girl.

"Don't know," was the answer.

"You don't know?" exclaimed the teacher. "Well, it's the name of something you can think of but can't touch. Now, can you give an example?"

"A football," was the confident answer.

As Tommy Saw It.

"Father: 'Is the teacher satisfied with you?'

Tommy: 'Oh, rather.'

"Did he tell you so?'

"Yes. Just the other day he said I would shut up my school this very day.' That shows that I know enough."

The old lady was looking for something to grumble at. She entered the butcher's shop with the light of battle in her eyes.

"I believe you sell diseased meat here!"

"Worse!" replied the butcher blandly.

"What do you mean, worse?" demanded the astonished patron.

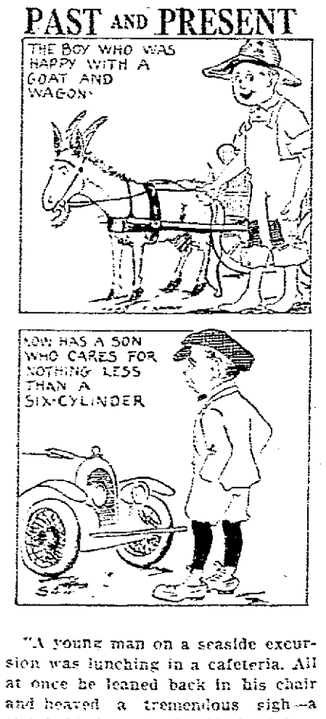
"The meat we serve here is dead," confided the butcher in a stage whisper.

"Madam, could you spare a poor man something to eat?"

"I will call my husband."

"No, thanks, madam. I am no cannibal."

PAST AND PRESENT



"A young man on a seaside excursion was lunching in a cafeteria. All at once he leaned back in his chair and heaved a tremendous sigh—a sigh half of rage and half of grief.

"'What's the matter, Bill?' said the other young man who was with him.

"Bill pointed to his plate.

"'This here steak and kidney pie,' he explained, 'see all that kidney? Well I saved it up to eat at the last, and now I'm so full I can't look at it. Gee, ain't it a shame?'"

"Is your cook going to stay?"

"It happens quite by accident," replied Mrs. Crosslots, "that she is."

"How do you mean 'by accident'?"

"She dropped a saucepan on her foot and can't travel."

"I Saw a Ship a-Sailing." Do You See the Captain?

"Mr. B.," the grocer said wearily, "I ask you for the last time, will you pay that three dollars you owe me?"

"For the last time?" Beats replied cheerfully. "I'm glad to hear you say that, old man. You know, I was getting awfully tired of hearing you ask that foolish question!"

A large map was spread upon the wall, and the teacher was instructing the class in geography. "Horace," she said, to a small pupil, "when you stand in Europe facing the north, you have on your right hand the great continent of Asia. What have you on your left hand?"

"A wart," replied Horace; "but I can't help it, teacher."

"Dearest, do you think you could be happy with a man like me?"

"Well, perhaps—if he wasn't too much like you!"
